Who decides? How far should we go to save a life? The talented Christina McDonald dissects the crumbling marriage of two good people, and reveals how love and obsession can combine to destroy even the most perfect family. 'Enthralling' GUARDIAN'Incredibly absorbing ... Christina McDonald demands an answer to the ultimate question: How far would you go to save your child? Is what Emma does an unforgivable betrayal of her medical oath, her husband, and herself? Something went wrong, McDonald offers a painful look at two hot-button topics: the desperate opioid crisis, and a system that allows the cost of cancer pharmaceuticals to extend far beyond the reach of so many. As medical technology advances, the choices grow more complicated. This might be my favorite book by McDonald yet.'"—Samantha Downing, USA Today bestselling author of My Lovely Wife "Do No Harm is a cross between Breaking Bad and Kohlberg's theory of moral development."—CrimeReads "A gripping page-turner with a heartwrenching moral quandary at its core. Highly recommend!"—Liz Fenton & Lisa Steinke, authors of How To Save a Life "In her suspenseful new thriller, Do No Harm, Christina McDonald brings a controversial topic right out of the real-world headlines and displays a fantastic ability to truly examine it from all sides...Do No Harm is an absolute page turner! McDonald has once again perfectly balanced little twists that the reader can feel clever for figuring out with big, sudden gasp-out-loud moments. We experience critical moments in the lives of these real people as Belkin explores challenging issues and questions involving medical ethics, human suffering, modern technology, legal liability, and financial reality. A gripping, emotional roller coaster with a sting in the tail."—Kimberly Belle, internationally bestselling author of The Marriage Lie "Grace Fraser and Do No Harm's Emma have a lot more in common that what meets the eye...From the outside, selling opioids sounds like a horrible and irresponsible idea, but readers will quickly become fans of Emma, Christina McDonald's protagonist. ..."—PopSquar "Christina McDonald knows how to pack an emotional punch! Do No Harm is a riveting, thought-provoking novel that keeps you reading even as it breaks your heart. Drawing upon the searingly timely topic of the opioid crisis and adding some much-needed context to the severity, classism and racism of the issue, McDonald pens a suspenseful thrill ride that is as socially aware as it is meticulously plotted...Instantly gripping and full of gasp-worthy twists, the book is clever, tense and utterly addictive. "Crammed with provocative insights, raw emotion, and heartbreaking dilemmas." (The New York Times) First, Do No Harm is a powerful examination of how life and death decisions are made at a major metropolitan hospital in Houston, as told through the stories of doctors, patients, families, and hospital administrators facing unthinkable choices.What is life worth? In an account that is fascinating, revealing, and almost novelistic in its immediacy, Belkin takes us inside a major hospital and introduces us to the people who must make life and death decisions every day. Do No Harm is tense, moving, and disturbingly relevant."—Robyn Harding, internationally bestselling author of The Swap and The Party "[A] complex medical thriller that will have the reader asking themselves what they would do if they were in Emma's position...McDonald explores the many perspectives of the opioid crisis with insight and compassion...Readers looking for a fast-paced and emotional story will enjoy Do No Harm and be thinking about it long after the last page is read."—The Seattle Book Review "Devastating, heartbreaking, and incredibly timely—this risky and brilliant examination of when the ends justify the means will captivate you from moment one. With astonishing candour and compassion, Henry Marsh reveals the exhilarating drama of surgery, the chaos and confusion of a busy modern hospital, and above all the need for hope when faced with life's most agonising decisions. Her third novel, Do No Harm, is a riveting thriller which braids the complexities of modern parenting with the pressures of finding a moral centre in a devastating opioid crisis. It will be up to the reader to decide if the ends justify the means."—Booklist "Gripping and timely."—Book Riot "Christina McDonald has a real talent for bringing suburban domestic suspense to life, and showcases it to great effect in Do No Harm. And who pays? Bill BrysonWinner of the PEN Ackerley Prize and the South Bank Sky Arts Award for LiteratureShortlisted for the Costa Biography Award, Duff Cooper Prize, Wellcome Book Prize, Guardian First Book Award, and Slightly Foxed Best First Biography PrizeLonglisted for the Samuel Johnson Prize for Non-Fiction What is it like to be a brain surgeon?How does it feel to hold someone's life in your hands, to cut through the stuff that creates thought, feeling and reason?How do you live with the consequences when it all goes wrong?DO NO HARM offers an unforgettable insight into the highs and lows of a life dedicated to operating on the human brain, in all its exquisite complexity. Wait a moment and try again. As we walk through the hallways of the hospital we meet a young pediatrician who must decide whether to perform a risky last-ditch surgery on a teenager who has spent most of his fifteen years in a hospital; we watch as new parents battle with doctors over whether to disconnect their fragile, premature twins from the machine that keeps them breathing; we are in the operating room as a poor immigrant, paralyzed from a gunshot in the neck, is asked by doctors whether or not he wishes to stay alive; we witness the worry of a kidney specialist as he decides whether or not to transfer an uninsured baby to the county hospital down the road. A breathtaking read."—Samantha M. Tense, taut, and absolutely unmissable, you'll find yourself wondering how far YOU would go to save your child's life."—J.T. Ellison, New York Times bestselling author of Lie to Me "Do No Harm takes on the air of a cat-and-mouse thriller, with each character trying to outwit the other and come out on top. You won't stop until you've turned the last page."—Bookreporter "McDonald takes the heart-wrenching premise that has become her trademark and ratchets it up a notch in Do No Harm, blurring the lines between good and evil in a doctor desperate to save her sick child. A stunning gut-punch of a suspense novel, Do No Harm expertly merges the dangers of the opioid crisis with a mother's love, leaving readers gasping for more. The stakes couldn't be higher in this smart, breathlessly-paced, and emotional novel about love, family, and how far we'll go when our child's life hangs in the balance. As a doctor's vow of 'do no harm' twists into 'do whatever it takes,' you'll be riveted by this thought-provoking and tragically believable story."—Hank Phillippi Ryan, USA Today bestselling author of The Murder List "This raw, emotional story echoes fear that would result when denied necessary available health treatment due to lack of funds. And when is a life worth living? Not to be missed!"—Hannah Mary McKinnon, bestselling author of Sister "Dear "Do No Harm poses morally gray questions...McDonald's novel doesn't just tell a story of a doctor trying to use the opioid crisis as a quick payday, she examines different angles of the crisis and how it plays out for different people, exploring who benefits, who suffers and who is left behind."—Fairfield Citizen "Nobody writes motherhood like Christina McDonald.
